Section 4 – Your tolerance to taking investment risk

Typically, the more risk you are willing to take when making an investment, the higher the potential for growth and the greater chance of loss. Over a period of time, the value of an investment can rise and fall – this is known as volatility. Generally, the higher the investment risk, the higher the potential volatility, but also the higher the potential returns.

This investment will be made into discretionary managed portfolio of shares in companies that are not listed on the main London Stock Exchange and as such is considered a high risk investment.

Your tolerance to risk will depend on your financial circumstances and goals.

4.1 This investment is typically held by investors over the longer term. Do you have sufficient other assets and/or income, so that you can afford for these investments to be tied up for more than 5 years:

Strongly agree    Agree    Disagree    Strongly disagree    Don't know

4.2 It may take a month (or significantly longer in certain circumstances) to receive your capital following a request to withdraw. Are you comfortable with this time frame?

Strongly agree    Agree    Disagree    Strongly disagree    Don't know

4.3 This investment is considered to be a high risk investment because it is invested in the shares of companies that are not listed on the main London Stock Exchange. As such it would not typically be expected to appeal to cautious investors who would prefer to take less risk with their wealth. Would you describe yourself as a cautious investor in relation to this investment?

Strongly agree    Agree    Disagree    Strongly disagree    Don't know

4.4 This service will invest in the shares of companies that are not listed on the main London Stock Exchange and as such investors should be prepared that they might fall or rise in value more sharply. For this investment to meet your long-term objectives, would you be willing to accept the risk of significant short-term falls in value?

Strongly agree    Agree    Disagree    Strongly disagree    Don't know

4.5 Are you happy to accept a high level of risk to your capital in relation to this investment, in the knowledge that this investment aims to qualify for Business Relief from inheritance tax and targets higher levels of growth?

Strongly agree    Agree    Disagree    Strongly disagree    Don't know
